

Reading Log Files

Having problems trying to search and locate all the errors on your repertoire log files?

Having problems sending huge log files to elixir support for troubleshooting?

Why not use a simple editor like notepad++ to help you draw useful conclusions?

This presentation demonstrates an interesting way of using a text editor like notepad++ to help you make sense of the large stack of log files generated on your server.